

IN THE ABSTRACT

Please replace the abstract at page 166, lines 2-8, with the following:

The present invention pertains to a system for document management and information processing. The system includes, for example, a managing part managing a plurality of documents each comprising one or a plurality of sections, a part creating a name of each section of plurality of sections of a document, the name comprising a name of the document, and a specifying part for an operator to specify an index type. Further, the name creating part creates a name for each section, the name comprising the name of the document and an index having an attribute of order and of a type specified by the specifying part.